Short title

12. This Act is called the Higher Education Amendment Act, 2000. 50

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE HIGHER EDUCATION
AMENDMENT BILL, 2000*BACKGROUND AND OBJECTS OF BILL

1. The implementation of the Higher Education Act, 1997 (Act No. 101 of 1997 — hereinafter referred to as “the Act”), has exposed some problem areas. This Bill seeks to remedy the problems experienced. The areas of concern and the main provisions proposed are mentioned hereunder.

2 In terms of section 51 of the Act, higher education may only be provided by public higher education institutions (as defined in the Act), organs of state and private higher education institutions registered in terms of the Act. In order to ensure compliance with this provision, the words “provide higher education” are amplified by way of a definition (clause 1(c)).

3.1 The procedure for the filling of a vacancy in the Council for Higher Education, which resulted from a member who vacates his or her office before the expiry of his or her term of office, is too complicated, time-consuming and costly.

3.2 It is proposed in clause 3 that the long process of filling of vacancies be shortened by means of authorising the Minister to write directly to the role players inviting for nominations. This approach will also save costs as no publications costs will be incurred to fill casual vacancies.

4.1 In terms of section 20(4), every public higher education institution is a juristic person. This in effect means that it can sue and be sued in its own name and that it can enter into agreements, including loan agreements and overdrafts in its own name. A number of institutions are now in dire financial situations and have run into huge overdrafts. Furthermore, financial risks exist where higher education institution developed infrastructure without proper planning and budgeting.

4.2 It is therefore advisable that the conclusion of any loan agreement or request for an overdraft or the development of any infrastructure be entered into or made in concurrence with the Minister.

5. Our country has during the recent years experienced an influx of foreign private education institutions. If left uncontrolled, this might be to the detriment of our local higher education institution system. In terms of the proposed amendment of sections 52, 53 and 54 the registrar of private higher education institutions is allowed discretionary powers in terms of the registration of private higher education institutions. Furthermore, the registrar is authorised, if it is in the best interest of the higher education system as a whole, to differentiate between foreign private higher education institutions and local private higher education institutions.

6. Other proposals in the Bill, which are of a technical nature, are to—
- (a) insert definitions necessitated by the proposed amendments;
 - (b) determine the type of juristic personality needed to qualify for registration as a private higher education institution (clause 6);
 - (c) reserve the name “university” and “technikon”, and the titles “rector”, “vice-chancellor” and “chancellor” for private higher education institutions registered in terms of the Act (clause 8(c)) and create an offence prohibiting the use of such names or titles (clause 10);
 - (d) authorise a council of a public higher education institution to change its name, if the Minister so approves (clause 9); and
 - (e) provide for the repeal of an obsolete Act (clause 11).
