A NOTE FROM THE MINISTER

The long wait is over! Here is the Basic Conditions of Employment Bill, 1997.

We are publishing this Bill for your comment as well as negotiations at the National Economic Development and Labour Council (NEDLAC).

The Bill is the product of the debate and discussions triggered by the Green Paper on Policy Proposals for an Employment Standards Statute published in February 1996. The discussions at NEDLAC have also had a major influence on this Bill for which we thank organised labour and business.

We urge you to comment on this Bill to further contribute to our positions as we finalise it before submission to Parliament later in the year. We would appreciate it if your comments could reach us by the end of May 1997.

Let this Bill be discussed and debated in every factory and mine, every farm and community hall, at the JSE and the Church, Mosque and Synagogue. In short let us enter into consultations.

Thank you very much

BASIC CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT BILL, 1997

SUMMARY OF PROVISIONS

Chapter 1 – Application of the Bill

1. Purpose of the Act (s.1)

The purpose of this Bill is to advance economic development and social justice by establishing and enforcing basic conditions of employment.

2. Application (s.2) The Bill applies to all employees and employers except members of the National Defence Force, National Intelligence Agency, South African Secret Service and unpaid charitable workers.

3. Inclusion of provisions in contracts of employment (s.4)

The basic conditions of employment established by the Bill form part of every contract of employment unless they have been replaced, varied or excluded in accordance with the Bill or unless the employee has contracted for more favourable terms of employment.

4. Invalidity of agreements (s.5)

A provision in an agreement which infringes a basic condition of employment established in terms of this Bill is invalid, unless the variation is permitted by the Bill.

Chapter 2 – Working Time

5. Arrangement of Working Time (s.6)

The working time of employees must be arranged so as not to endanger their health and safety and with due regard to their family responsibilities. The Minister of Labour will issue a Code of Good Practice on the Arrangement of Working Time to offer guidance with the implementation of these obligations.

6. Ordinary hours of work (s.8)

6.1 The maximum ordinary weekly hours for all employees are 45.

6.2 The maximum daily hours that an employee may work are nine for employees who work on five days or less a week, and eight for employees who work six days a week.

7. Overtime (s.9)

7.1 Overtime may only be worked by agreement. An employee may not work more than three hours overtime in a day or ten hours overtime in a week.

7.2 Overtime work must be compensated by paying the employee at 1,5 times the employee's normal wage or, if agreed, by granting the employee a period of paid time off equivalent to the value of the overtime pay.

8. Extended ordinary daily hours of work (s.10)

An agreement may permit an employee to work for up to 12 hours in a day without receiving overtime pay. The weekly limits continue to apply and the employee may not work on more than 5 days in a week.

9. Averaging of hours of work (s.11)

A collective agreement may permit the hours of work of an employee to be averaged over a period of up to four months. The average time worked over the agreed period must not exceed 45 ordinary hours and five hours overtime per week.

10. Determination of hours of work by Minister (s.12)

The Minister of Labour, on grounds of health and safety, may make regulations setting shorter maximum hours of work for any category of employees.

11. Meal intervals (s.13) 11.1 An employee must have a meal interval of at least 60 minutes after five hours. This may be reduced to 30 minutes by agreement.

11.2 An employee required to be available for work or to remain on the employer's premises during the meal interval must be paid.

12. Daily and weekly rest period (s.14)

12.1 An employee must have a daily rest period of at least 12 hours between ending work and starting work the following day.

12.2 Every employee must have a rest period of at least 36 consecutive hours each week. The rest period must include a Sunday, unless otherwise agreed. An employee may agree to have a longer rest period (60 hours) every two weeks.

13. Pay for work on Sundays (s.15)

An employee who works on a Sunday must receive double pay. However, an employee who normally works on a Sunday must be paid at 1,5 times the employee's normal wage. By agreement, an employer may compensate an employee for Sunday work by granting paid time off.

14. Night work (s.16)

14.1 The Bill contains protections for employees who work at night. Night work is defined as work performed between 18h00 and 06h00. Employees must be compensated by the payment of an allowance or by a reduction of working hours. Transportation must be available for employees.

14.2 Employers must inform employees who regularly work after 23h00 of the health and safety hazards of night work and on request provide employees with a free medical assessment.

15. Public holidays (s.17)

All employees must be paid their normal wage for a public holiday that falls on a working day. An employee may not be required to work on a public holiday unless by agreement. Work on a public holiday must be remunerated at double rates.

16. Exclusions (s.18)

The limits on hours of work do not apply to senior managers and travelling sales personnel. The Minister of Labour may exclude or vary the application of the provisions in Chapter 3 to employees earning above a certain amount.

17. Emergency work (s.19)

The limits on ordinary and overtime working hours and the requirements for meal intervals and rest periods do not prevent the performance of emergency work.

CHAPTER 3 – Leave

18. Annual leave (s.20 and s.21)

18.1 Employees are entitled to three weeks' fully paid leave after every 12 months continuous employment. This may also be calculated as one days' leave for every 17 days of employment.

18.2 An employer must not pay an employee instead of granting annual leave. However, an employee whose employment is terminated must be paid out any leave pay due that the employee has not taken.

19. Sick leave (s.22 – 25)

19.1 An employee is entitled to six weeks' paid sick leave for every 36 months of continuous employment. However, during the first six months of employment an employee is entitled to only one days' paid sick leave for every 26 days worked.

19.2 An employer may require a medical certificate from an employee who is regularly away from work for more than two days before paying the employee for sick leave.

19.3 An employee's daily pay for sick leave may be reduced by agreement, provided the number of days sick leave is increased. The pay may not be reduced below 75% of ordinary pay.

20. Maternity leave (s.26)

20.1 A pregnant employee is entitled to 4 months maternity leave. This leave may begin up to four weeks before the expected date of birth, unless otherwise agreed or if the employee is required to do so for health reasons.

20.2 An employer may not require an employee to return to work for six weeks after the birth of a child. During this period, an employee may elect to return to work if a medical doctor or midwife certifies that she is fit to do so.

20.3 An employee who has a still-born child or a miscarriage in the third trimester of pregnancy may remain on maternity leave for six weeks or for longer if a doctor certifies it necessary for her health.

21. Protection of employees before and after the birth of a child (s.27)

During pregnancy and for six months after birth, an employer must offer suitable alternative employment to an employee who works at night or whose work may endanger her health or safety or her child's.

22. Family responsibility leave (s.28)

22.1 An employee is entitled to three days paid family responsibility leave. This only applies to employees who work on four or more days in a week.

22.2 The employee may take this leave in the event of the birth of the employee's child, if the employee's child is sick or if a member of the employee's immediate family dies.

22.3 An employer may require reasonable proof of the purpose for which this leave is taken before paying the employee.

23. Leave in excess of entitlement (s.29)

The provisions of Chapter 3 do not apply to leave granted by an employer in excess of the requirements of the Bill.

24. Exclusions (s.30)

The provisions of Chapter 3 do not apply to employees who work less than 4 hours a week.

Chapter 4 – Remuneration, Deductions and Notice of Termination

25. Payment of remuneration and deductions (s.31–33)

25.1 An employer must pay an employee according to arrangements made between them. Payment may take place daily, weekly, fortnightly or monthly and must take place at the workplace unless otherwise agreed and during, or within 15 minutes of, the employee's working time.

25.2 An employer may only deduct money from an employee's pay if permitted or required to do so by law, collective agreement, court order or arbitration award.

25.3 A deduction for loss or damage caused by the employee in the course of employment may only be made by agreement and after the employer has established by a fair procedure that the employee was at fault.

25.4 An employee may agree in writing to an employer deducting a debt specified in the agreement.

26. Termination of employment (s.34–36)

26.1 During the first four weeks of employment, an employment contract may be terminated on one week's notice. The notice period during the remainder of the first year of employment is two weeks. It is 30 days for employees with more than a years' service.

26.2 The notice period for a farmworker or domestic worker who has worked for more than four weeks is one month.

26.3 The notice period may be varied by a collective agreement.

26.4 Notice must be given in writing. If the recipient cannot understand the notice it must be explained to the employee in a language he or she can understand.

26.5 An employer may pay the employee the remuneration for the notice period instead of giving notice. An employee who occupies accommodation situated on the employer's premises or supplied by the employer may elect to remain in the accommodation for the duration of the notice period.

26.6 The termination of employment by an employer on notice in terms of the Bill does not prevent the employee challenging the fairness or lawfulness of the dismissal in terms of the Labour Relations Act.

27. Exclusions (s.37)

The requirements with regard to remuneration, deductions and termination do not apply to employees who work less than 4 hours a week.

Chapter 5 – Administrative Obligations

Chapter 7 – Variation of Basic Conditions of Employment

36. Variation by agreement (s.50)

36.1 A collective agreement concluded by a bargaining council, or between an employers' organisation and a trade union, may replace or exclude any basic condition of employment except-

- (b) the provisions concerning child labour, forced labour and maternity leave;
- (c) the provisions concerning sick-leave, except to the extent permitted by the Bill.

36.2 Other collective agreements and individual agreements may only replace or exclude basic conditions of employment to the extent permitted by the Bill.

41. Period of operation of sectoral determination (s.58)

A sectoral determination remains binding until the Minister of Labour cancels or suspends it or until it is replaced by a collective agreement concluded by a bargaining council or a statutory council.

(a) may prescribe the maximum number of ordinary hours of work and overtime that may be worked----

(i) on one day;

(ii) during one week; or

(iii) during a continuous period without a break; and

(b) must not prescribe maximum hours in excess of those permitted in sections 8 and 9.

13. Meal intervals

(1) An employer must not require or permit an employee to work continuously for more than five hours without a meal interval of at least 60 minutes.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1) work is continuous if it is not interrupted by an interval of at least 60 minutes.

(3) An employer may not require or permit an employee to work during a meal interval unless the employee's duties are of such a nature that it is not practicable for that employee to leave those duties unattended.

(4) An employer may not require or permit an employee to take a meal interval of longer than 75 minutes unless----

(a) the portion in excess of 75 minutes is counted as time worked for which the employee is remunerated; or

(b) the employee resides on the premises at which the workplace is situated.

(5) An employer is required to remunerate an employee for a meal interval if----

(a) the employee works or the employer requires the employee to be available for work during the meal interval; or

(b) the employee is obliged to remain on the employer's premises during the meal interval.

(6) An agreement may provide that-

(a) the meal interval required in terms of subsections (1) and (2) be reduced to no less than 30 minutes;

(b) an employee who works on less than six hours per day does not have a meal interval in terms of subsection (1).

(2) Despite subsection (1), an employer must pay an employee who works on a Sunday at least the employee's daily wage.

(3) Despite subsection (1) and (2), an agreement may permit an employer to grant an employee who works on a Sunday paid time off equivalent to the difference in value between the pay received by the employee for working on the Sunday and the pay that the employee is entitled to in terms of subsection (1) and (2).

(4) Any time worked on a Sunday by an employee who does not ordinarily work on a Sunday is not taken into account in calculating an employee's ordinary hours of work in terms of section 8(1)(a), but is taken into account in calculating the overtime worked by the employee in terms of section 9(1)(b)(ii).

(5) If a shift worked by an employee falls on a Sunday and another day, the whole shift is deemed to have been worked on the Sunday, unless the greater portion of the shift was worked on the other day, in which case the whole shift is deemed to have been worked on the other day.

- (b) the amount earned by that employee for the actual time worked that day.

(6) An employer must pay an employee for a public holiday on the pay-day immediately following the public holiday.

- (7)(a) If only part of an employee's working time falls on a public holiday the provisions of this section apply if the greater part of that working time falls on that public holiday.

(b) If the provisions of this section apply in terms of paragraph (a) to any portion of an employee's continuous working period, all work during that working period must be remunerated in accordance with this section.

18. Exclusions

(2) In respect of each leave cycle, an employee is entitled to three weeks' annual leave on full remuneration.

(3) An employer may comply with subsection (2) by granting an employee one day of leave on full remuneration for every 17 days on which----

(9) If a paid public holiday falls on a day during an employee's annual leave, the employer must grant the employee an additional day of paid leave.

(10) Except on termination of employment as provided in section 21(3), an employer must not give an employee leave pay instead of granting paid leave as required by this section.

21. Leave pay

(1) An employer and an employee must agree on an employee's leave pay which must be at least equivalent to either----

(a) the remuneration that the employee would have received for working for a period equal to the period of leave, calculated at the employee's rate of remuneration immediately before the beginning of the period of leave; or

(b) in respect of each week of leave, 2% of the employee's total remuneration during the leave cycle in which the leave was earned.

(b) in respect of the employee's annual leave entitlement during an incomplete leave cycle, must pay an employee who has been in employment for longer than four months, an amount equal to 2% of the remuneration paid to the employee during the final incomplete leave cycle, multiplied by the number of weeks annual leave to which that employee would have been entitled in respect of the final leave cycle, had the employee completed that leave cycle; or

(c) in the case of an employee referred to in section 20(3), one day's remuneration in respect of every 17 days on which a leave credit is earned.

(3) Despite subsection (2), during the first six months of continuous employment, an employee is entitled to one day's paid sick leave for every 26 days worked.

(4) During an employee's first sick leave cycle, an employer may reduce the employee's entitlement to sick leave in terms of subsection (2) by the number of days sick leave taken in terms of subsection (3).

(5) The amount paid to an employee for a day's sick leave must be the same as the remuneration payable to the employee for the ordinary hours the employee would have worked on that day.

23. Proof of incapacity

(1) An employer is not required to pay an employee in terms of section 22 if the employee has been absent from work for more than two consecutive days or more than two occasions during an eight week period and, on request by the employer, does not produce a medical certificate stating that the employee was unable to work for the duration of the employee's absence on account of sickness or injury.

(2) The medical certificate must be signed by a medical practitioner or person who is certified to diagnose and treat patients and who is registered with a professional council.

(3) An employer who requests the production of a medical certificate must provide reasonable assistance to that employee to obtain the certificate if--

(a) the employee lives on the employer's premises; and

(b) it is not reasonably practicable for the employee to obtain a certificate.

24. Variation by agreement

An agreement may reduce the sick-pay to which an employee is entitled in respect of any day's absence in terms of section 22 if----

27. Protection of employees before and after birth of a child

(1) No employer may require or permit a pregnant employee or an employee who is nursing her child to perform work that is hazardous to her health or that of her child.⁽⁵⁾

(2) During an employee's pregnancy, and for a period of six months after the birth of her child, her employer must offer her suitable alternative employment on terms and conditions that are no less favourable than her ordinary terms and conditions of employment, if----

(a) the employee is employed on night work or her ordinary duties of work pose a danger to her health or safety or that of her child; and

(b) it is reasonably practicable for the employer to do so.

28. Family responsibility leave

(1) During each leave cycle, an employee who works four or more days per week for one employer is entitled to a period of three days paid leave which may be taken----

- (c) in the event of the death of a member of the employee's immediate family.

(2) Before paying an employee for leave in terms of this section, an employer may require reasonable proof of an event contemplated in subsection (1) for which the leave was taken.

(3) An employee's unused entitlement to leave in terms of this section expires at the end of the leave cycle in which it accrues.

(4) A collective agreement may vary the number of days and the circumstances under which leave is to be granted in terms of subsection (1).

- (b) weekly remuneration is calculated by multiplying the daily remuneration by the number of days that the employee works in a week or by dividing the monthly remuneration by four and one third.

33. Deductions and other acts concerning remuneration

(1) An employer must not make any deduction from an employee's remuneration unless----

- (a) the employee gives prior written agreement to the deduction in respect of a debt specified in the agreement; or

(b) provide the employee with all the benefits the employee would have received during the notice period.

(2) If an employee gives notice of termination of employment, and the employer waives any part of the notice, the employer must pay the remuneration and provide the benefits referred to in subsection (1), unless the employer and employee agree otherwise.

36. Employees in employer provided accommodation

(1) An employee who resides in accommodation that is situated on the premises of the employer or that is supplied by the employer is entitled to remain in the accommodation for a period of 30 days or, if it is a longer period, until the contract of employment could lawfully have been terminated if the employer----
